

Kiss, László Gergő, fine artist

He was born in Nyíregyháza in 1987, he lives and works in Budapest.

The central topic as well as structuring power of his pictures is the ambition to create balance.

The assemblages are made of surrealistically connected but real spaces, sometimes crowded, maze-like spaces that he connects with gradients of colours and shapes.

It's not easy to find our way inside these pieces however there are always reference points helping the perceiver to navigate. These reference points are meant to wake childhood memories making the overall vision cosy and familiar - toy planes, ships, trains, toy characters, bright and colourful objects divide up the space.

He abstractly dresses up memories giving them a new look and a new context, hence creating a self sustaining system that functions in a space that can resemble to the world of comics and sci-fi. He strives to create cosmos out of chaos.

Apart from his 3d paintings he is experimenting through other mediums, such as body paintings, photography and short films especially gifs. What he finds interesting in these ways of self-expression as well, is the possibility to re-phrase moments that are part of our everyday life, to give them a deeper meaning whilst immortalizing them.
